

Expert Forums: Questioning Sustainable Development

June 1-4, 2010 - Pavilion 4 - Porte de Versailles Exhibition Center - Paris, France

As part of this 9th Forum LABO & BIOTECH, held under the auspices of CIFL (French Interprofessional Committee of Laboratory Suppliers), the Expert Forums this year will focus on sustainable development.

New avenues for further development and practice and new research and cooperation issues are some of the central questions to which analysis, control, research and analytical process professionals will find practical answers through the experiences shared by participants during the Expert Forums.

A free series of personal accounts

Throughout the duration of the show the series of testimonials of the Forum LABO & BIOTECH Expert Forums will provide a snapshot of the progress in the profession. Visitors will find clear, independent information that practically and specifically addresses their day-to-day concerns.

Participation in the Expert Forums is free of charge and requires only prior registration on the www.forumlabo.com site.

Prominent speakers

Each day from 10am to 12pm, speakers from leading companies in the Laboratory industry will share their experiences on sustainable development management within their companies, addressing its social, societal and economic aspects:

Monday, June 1 – Sustainable Development: Definition and Progress
Arnaud GABENISCH, ALCIMED

Tuesday, June 2 – Rhodia's Sustainable Development Policy
Jacques KHELLIFF, Director of Sustainable Development - RHODIA

Wednesday, June 3 – Sustainable Development in Public Procurement
